RAN away from the subscribers, living in Somerset county, state of Maryland, on the 26th of December last, two Negro Men; George and Randel—George is about six feet high, twenty-two years of age, and of a yellow complexion—had on when he went away a dark cloth coat, kersey breeches and white yarn stockings; he is a pretty good player on the fiddle.—Randel is about five feet two inches high, twenty years of age, and of a yellow complexion, has a loud hoarse voice, and is a good deal bow-legged; he pretends to be something of a cobbler;—had on when he went away, a fustian coat, home-made kersey breeches and white yarn stockings. There is no doubt, but they will change their clothes as well as their names—they having been taken up on the 29th of December last at Duck-creek, in the state of Delaware, and committed by John Cole, Esq. Seven contiguous Lots of Ground.

On one of these lots there are two Frame Houses, which rent for about £ 35 per annum; and on another there is a good Brick Building, of two stories, which with the adjoining garden rents for 200 dollars per annum. There are on the premises a great variety of fruit and ornamented trees.

The situation of these Lots in a very elevated and improving part of the city, renders them an object highly worthy of the attention of those who are desirous of building.

The terms of payment will be one fourth cash, one fourth in 60, one fourth in 90, and one fourth in 120 days.

Sales at Auction.
On Saturday the 20th April, at 2 o'clock P. M. on the premises,
Sundry Building and Garden Lots,

Some of them contigious to, and others at a small distance from the city, containing from about one quarter of an acre to about four acres each. The small lots front on Vine and Callowhill Streets, near Schuylkill—the large lots front on the south side of Francis Street, on the east side of Schuylkill river, on the west side of Schuylkill, second street, and on intermediate streets—the whole containing about 140 acres, being part of the tract known by the name of Springettsbury.

The situation of many of the lots is on high ground, commanding views of the Schuylkill, and supposed to be so much detached from the built parts of the city, as to be out of danger in case of an unhappy return of the fever.

Maps shewing the division of the ground, may be seen at the Coffee-house, at Ogden's tavern in Chesnut street, at Sybert's tavern in the Nothern Liberties, and at the Middle and Upper Ferries on Schuylkill.

The abundance of stone, for building, on part of the ground, will prove very advantageous to purchasers, as it is proposed to sell at the same time those large quarries on the east side of the Schuylkill, near and above the bridge.

The terms will be cash for the lots of 49 1-2 and 50 feet front, and for those of a larger size one half cash immediately, and the other half to be paid in six months from the day of sale.

One Hundred Dollars Reward.

RAN away from the Subscriber, on Tuesday the second of this inst. April, living in Kent county, Maryland, near Chester Town, the following described Negroes, viz. William, about 5 feet 5 or 6 inches high, a yellowish complexioned fellow, about thirty years of age, formerly the property of doctor William Matthews, he has been very much given to running away, and has been so often described in the public papers within this twelve months that any further description of him seems needless.—Jacob, about 6 feet high, and about 32 years of age, of a common Negroe complection, down look, his little finger of his left hand stands straight, occasioned by the cut of a sickle. Patt, the wife of said Jacob, about 27 years of age, a small light made woman of a yellowish complection, with thick lips for an American of her stature, she is a very good needle woman, and spins on either small or great wheel, and is very handy in any common house work.—Two children of the said Jacob's and Patt's, the one a male child about four years old, the other a female child about two years old. The above described Negroes took with them, besides their own wearing apparel, three coats, two of which were linsey cloth of a light grey color, both new; one of the two was a great deal too large for either of the said fellows; the other coat of brown cloth, half worn; three under jackets, one a velvet, another a drab, the other a light colored linsey cloth do, one new pair of Calf skin shoes, lined with linnen and bound with leather, one pair of boots remarkably large in the legs, several pairs of stockings and a silver watch, all stolen: their own wearing apparel as follows—William had on a light horse regimental coat worked with silver twist, (which coat he had when he was brought home to me the first of February last, a round sailor jacket (blue,) thickset breeches, patched with corduroy in the stride, with other necessary clothing. Jacob, two linsey cloth coatees, lead colored, one new the other half worn, blue linsey cloth jacket, half worn, two pairs of linsey cloth trowsers, of a lead colour, the one new the other half worn, tolerable good shoes and stockings. Patt has every day cloathing, and her children wore home-made linen and linsey, her other cloathing not so well known; it is uncertain which course they may take, as William is such an experienced coaster.

Any person or persons apprehending said negroes or sounding them, so that their master may get them again, shall be entitled to the above reward, or in proportion for either of them, that is to say, 40 dollars for each of the fellows, and twenty dollars for the wench and children, and if brought home, all reasonable charges paid by
BENSON GEARS.

By ROBERT PROUD,

In two octavo volumes.

A work entirely new, original, and highly interesting; embellished with a Portrait of the head of WILLIAM PENN, and a new Map of Pennsylvania, New-Jersey, Maryland, and the State of Delaware, and parts adjacent.

IN this publication are exhibited the remarkable rise, happy progress, and extraordinary prosperity of that province, till near the time of the declared independency of the United States of America; effected by such uncommon and pacific means such singular, just and prudent policy, as appear no where in the history of nations, to have so generally, and so extensively prevailed, in any other country, to an equal degree of advancement, importance, and felicity of the people, and so generally to have excited the admiration of all observers, as in the flourishing and happy state of the province of Pennsylvania:—proper to be known and remembered by all those, who wish to be informed in the extraordinary melioration of this country, and in the means of rendering the inhabitants so happy and prosperous in former time; as well as an egregious example for posterity and surrounding states to imitate and improve upon, &c.

CAUTION.

WHEREAS my wife, Mary James, has proved unfaithful to my bed and to my interest, and behaved in every respect unbecoming a wife—I am thereby and in consequence of the failure of all my other endeavors to reclaim her, reduced to the painful necessity of declaring that I will not hereafter pay one farthing of any debts she may attempt to contract in my name.

Continued.

On the first of August there appeared the following address to the Public, entitled the INHUMAN RENCOUNTER.

Some improper reflections upon me, having appeared in the World and the Oracle, my friends have thought it expedient that they should be publicly answered.

Having various reasons (as will clearly appear in this narrative) for thinking an actor on the Theatre at Richmond, in Surrey, who calls himself Capt. Wathen, a despicable fellow, and having been much offended by his repeated impertinences, I wrote him a note in a moment of indignation signifying that I thought him a poltroon and a scoundrel. The answer to this note was conveyed to me in the boxes of the Haymarket Theatre, by one Blewit, an actor belonging to the Drury Lane company, who has impudently assumed the name of a noble friend of mine, the Earl of Barrymore—this fellow, who values himself upon being a strong man, and a great bruiser, informed me that he came from capt. Wathen, to let me know, if I did not make an apology for the language I had used, that he should expect my company, with a second at Mr. Williames's Coffee-House, in Bow-street, Covent Garden; my reply was prompt—that I knew Capt. Wathen, and consequently would not apologize. I required a few hours previous notice to settle my affairs and then would willingly become responsible to captain Wathen in the manner, I then thought, he required.

Here the affair rested till the conclusion of the Play, when on going into the street, I was suddenly seized by Wathen, Barrymore and Mr. H. Angelo, the Fencing Master—dreading from their imprecations instant assassination, I called out to a Mr. Young, who was in the crowd, to come to my assistance, and save me from immediate murder. On his interference, they ceased, and I consented to go to Mr. Williames's, thinking the matter would terminate in a gentlemanly manner; but, alas! I was miserably mistaken, and I found myself completely ensnared into a private room, under false pretences; and, as it eventually proved to answer the most diabolical and butchering ends. To be brief, Wathen declared, with the most shocking imprecations, that if I did did not give him a written apology for calling him a scoundrel, he would literally murder me; and as I disdained the man, I refused to comply. Finding myself without assistance, confined, and in danger of assassination, I drew my penknife as I sat in my chair, and swore I would not be ill-used with impunity, which Barrymore perceiving, wrested it from my hand as I sat there. I then got up, and attempted to leave the room, when Wathen and Barrymore pushed me backwards with great violence, and swore I should not. I then appealed to their manhood reminding them of my declining health, and the loss of my right arm: but this declaration only increased their cowardly fury; for Wathen at this instant, struck me a violent blow with a stick, at least three inches in diameter, on the left side of my skull, which laid it open for three quarters of an inch; I instantly returned the blow, and cut him on the left cheek bone, and flew to the fire place for the poker, but Barrymore barred the way—I then seized my own stick, which, compared to Wathen's, was a curtain rod to a kitchen poker; and we fought for some minutes, when I had greatly the advantage; until Wathen, by using his stick horizontally, struck me several blows upon the groin, and at last wounded my scrotum, (for which infernal act, he ought to be stretched on the boards at Surgeon's Hall). I fainted with the excessive torment, and this barbarian continued striking me with his utmost force, as I lay with my head against the wall, over the skull, legs, thighs, face, and belly, while the blood issued in torrents from the wound on my head, my mouth, and my ears; and that russian Barrymore kicked me upon the left ribs, the pain of which I feel to this hour—at length, being brought to the very threshold of death, I consented to beg my life. At this period, a party of his associates rushing into the room, Wathen had the unparralleled savageness to kick me in the mouth with his boot with the greatest ferocity, by which he drove two teeth down my throat, merely because I hesitated to beg my life a second time before them.

In this miserable state, I was conveyed home at one o'clock, and bled incessantly till five the same morning. As my life was despaired of from the vast effusion of blood, (all my cloaths, from my head to my heel being dyed in it) I arranged my affairs, under the fears of immediate dissolution. I had, on examination, by my surgeon Mr. Ainsley, one deep wound upon my skull, one on my mouth (the upper lip bisected) three on my face, five on my left arm, two cuts on my right leg, one on my left leg, one wound on my left thigh, four on my groin, and one blow a little below my liver; and all this butchery was perpetrated, Reader, merely because I would not apologize to a shabby fellow for having called him a Scoundrel. Barrymore's malice was latent, and of long standing, originating solely from my not thinking him so capital an actor as he unhappily thinks himself. It was a base preconcerted plan to overpower and maim me by all any means.

EXTRACT FROM

A CHARGE,

Delivered to the

CLERGY OF THE DIOCESE AT LANDAFF,

In June, 1798,

By R. Watson, D. D. F. R. S. Bishop of Landaff.

Reverend Brethren,

"Leaving all intricate matters of state to the deliberation of the wisest and best men in the kingdom; suffer me to advert to that spirit of turbulence, and disaffection towards the government of the country, of envy and disrespect towards their superiors in society of desperate unconcern as to their future state, and of hardened impiety towards their Maker, which has unhappily possessed certain individuals in many parts of the kingdom. I have no reason to believe that this description of persons is numerous in any country; and should be happy if I could persuade myself that they were less frequently met with in this Diocese, than in any other equal portion of the country. You are better judges than I can be, whether this is the fact; but whether it be so or not, enow of them, I fear, will be found in your several parishes, to require your pastoral care in bringing them to a right understanding. Some of them may be ignorant of the nature of government; of the origin of property; of the necessity of subordination; from never having duly considered these matters: others may be stupid through vice, and prepared, by their profligacy, to help forward every scheme tending to public ruin—from an absurd hope, from a wicked expectation of bettering their condition in the general confusion. You will vary your admonitions and instructions according to the nature of the case, which shall require your attention; always remembering, that the mind of man yields to kindness and courtesy, to gentle language and sound argument but that its prejudices are confirmed by severity of expostulation, and harshness of rebuke. You will not, I think, be guilty of a breach of christian charity in the use of even harsh language, when you explain to them the cruelties which the French have used in every country which they have invaded; for no language can reach the atrocity of the fact. They every where promise protection to the poorest of every thing they possess; they plunder their cottages, and they set them on fire when the plunder is exhausted; they torture the owners to discover their wealth, and they put them to death when they have none to discover; they violate females of all ages; they insult the hoary head, and trample on all the decencies of life. This is no exaggerated picture; whoever has read the account of the proceedings of the French in Swabia, in Holland, in Italy, in Switzerland, knows that it is not.—And can there be men in Great-Britain, of so base a temper, so maddened by malignity, so cankered by envy, so besotted by folly, so stupified as to their own safety, as to abet the designs of such an enemy? It is said there are such men; but I have too firm a confidence in the general good sense of the people of Great-Britain to believe, that such men are either many in number, or respectable for character, or formidable for connection. The men of this principality, at least, have nobly shewn, in a late instance, that they inherit the spirit of their ancestors, and have too ardent a love of their country to submit to a foreign yoke, under whatever specious promises of supporting the Rights of Men, of introducing Liberty and Equality, the invaders may attempt to deceive them.

What are these rights of men, this liberty, this equality, of which every man has heard so much, and of which few have any proper conception? Let us see what they are in France itself. There no man has any right in his person, or in his property; both are absolutely at the disposal of the few persons who have usurped the government—There no man has any liberty, except the liberty of submitting to the worst of slavery; for what slavery can be worse than that of being subject to laws which are perpetually changed, according to the caprice of the ruling faction? Ubi jus incertum, ibi jus nullum. As to equality, if by it be meant an equality of property or condition, there is no such thing in France; nor was there ever such a thing in any country since the world began. The scripture speaks of Pharaoh and his princes in the time of Abraham, when he was forced by a famine to go down to Egypt, about four hundred and thirty years after the flood. Abraham himself had, at that period, men servants and maid servants, and was very rich in cattle, in silver and in gold. He and Lot had herdsmen and servants of various kinds; and they every where met with kings, who had subjects and soldiers. The inequality of property and condition, which some silly or bad people are so fond of declaiming against, existed in the very infancy of the world, and must, from the nature of things, exist to the end of it.

Suppose a ship to be wrecked on an uninhabited island, and that all the officers perished, but that the common men and their wives were saved; here, if any where, we may meet with liberty and equality, and the rights of man—what think you would be the consequence? A state of anarchy and equality might, perhaps, subsist for a day; but wisdom, courage, industry, economy, would presently introduce a superiority of some over others; and, in order that each man might preserve for himself the cabin he had built, the ground he had tilled, or the fish he had taken, all would agree in the propriety of appointing some one amongst the number, or more than one to direct, govern, and protect the whole by the common strength. Thus the restriction of liberty, and the destruction of equality, and all the circumstances which superficial reasoners represent as grievances in society and subversive of the rights of man, would of necessity be introduced. No one would be left at liberty to invade his neighbour's property; some would by skill and activity become rich, and they would be allowed to bequeath at their death their wealth to their children; others would by idleness and debauchery remain poor; and, having nothing to leave to their children, these when grown up, would be under the necessity of maintaining themselves, by working for their neighbours, till by prudence and thrift, they acquired enough to purchase property of their own, on which they might employ their labour. This is no visionary reasoning; we have an instance of its reality in the colony at Botany Bay. The persons composing this colony, who by their crimes were made the outcasts of Great Britain, and were equal to each other, none of them possessing any thing, are already become very unequal in property and condition; and I am happy to add, in respectability of character. It is a general law, which God has established throughout the world, that riches and respect should attend prudence and deligence; and as all men are not equal in the faculties of either body or mind, by which riches and respect are acquired, a necessity of superiority and subordination springs from the very nature which God has given us. All this I am sensible is so well understood by you, that I would not have mentioned the matter had there not been present other auditors, who may not have fully considered the origin, relations, and dependencies of civil society.

Are the French coming here to enrich the nation? Will they pay attention to the poor of this country, when they have so many thousands of infinitely poorer persons in their own? will they reward their seditious adherents amongst us?—Yes, they will reward them as all history informs us such traitors ever have been rewarded; they will reward then with contempt, pillage, beggary, slavery, and death. The nation will be ruined by exorbitant impositions,—our naval power will be destroyed,—our commerce transfered to France—our lands will be divided (not amongst those who wickedly covet their neighbours goods,) but amongst the French soldiers, who will be every where stationed, as the Roman soldiers were of old, to awe the people, and collect the taxes—the flower of our youth will be compelled to serve in foreign countries, to promote the wicked projects of French ambition,—Great Britain will be made an appendage to continental despotism

I would say to the most violent democrat in the kingdom,—Suppose the business done: after seas of blood have been shed, millions of lives lost, towns plundered, villages burned, the royal family exterminated, and unutterable calamity has been endured by persons of all ranks; after all this has been done, what advantages will you have obtained beyond what you now possess? Will your property be better protected? Will your personal liberty be more respected? Will our code of jurisprudence be improved? Will our laws be more impartially administred? Quite the contrary of all this now takes place in France. I do not say that when things are settled there, the present wretched condition of its inhabitants will be continued, and I hope it will not; but I am sincerely of opinion that few of us will live to see such a system established in France as will procure to its inhabitants half the blessings, which our ancestors have enjoyed, which we do enjoy, and which it is our interest to take care that our posterity shall enjoy, under the constitution of Great Britain.

In this expression my dislike of a democracy, I only think with the greatest of all poets, who expressed the same dislike near three thousand years ago. And, what is of more importance, I think with a vast majority of the people of this country—For though, Therstes like, there may be some.

"Loquacious, loud, and turbulent of tongue;
"Awed by no shame, by no respect controul'd
"In scandal busy, in reproaches bold:
"Who chiefly glory with licentious style
"To lash the great, and Monarchs to revile;"

Pope's Homer.

yet the general spirit of the nation is of a contrary nature; it rises superior to all party petulence; and in the language of Ulysses, boldly says to every seditious incendiary—

"Peace factious Monster, born to vex the State,
"With wrangling talents form'd for foul debate:
"Curb that impetuous tongue, nor rashly vain,
"And singly mad, asperse the sov'reign reign."

This I am confident is the sentiment of the bulk of the people, and whilst it continues to be so, we may bid defiance to the threats of France, and to the desperate machinations of a few mean and discontented persons amongst ourselves."

OF VOLNEY.

[A FACT.]

WHEN this celebrated Philosopher was seeking the "course of the winds" in this country, he happened to be overtaken by a storm on Lake Erie. The vessel, in which were a number of other passengers, was driven by the force of the wind directly towards the shore, which presented to the view of the affrighted passengers one continued range of huge rocks rising perpendicularly from the Lake, and upon which they momently expected to be dashed in pieces.—In this situation the calm Philosophy of Volney deserted him: with consternation in his countenance and frantic gesture, which it is impossible to describe, he ran to the Captain, who was busied in endeavoring to save the vessel from destruction, and demanded of him instantly to put out his boat and set him on shore. The Captain in vain, endeavored to expostulate with him on the impossibility of complying with his request.—"I tel you vat, Captaine," says he," if you do not directement put me on de shore, begar I shall be drown—and if I be drown I vil tel Citoyen Adet, et le Citoyen Adet vil tel de President, et Monsieur le President will hang you for von dem rascat!"—Fear had so completely taken possession of his mind, that he did not consider the impossibility of putting his threats into execution, "if he vas drown" Fortunately, however, the wind soon after abating, saved the Captain from the gallows, and the Philosopher from the Devil!!!

Foreign Intelligence.

Via New-York and Charleston.

LONDON, January 24.

We are credibly informed, that the part of Germany situated along the Rhine, from Manheim as far as Dusseldorf, towards Franconia, is threatened with an invasion by the French. It appears from the measures pursued in consequence of the threat, that no hopes are entertained of opposing their progress, as the Austrians are less in force in this quarter than any other. The elector Palatine has withdrawn all the troops which he had, nearly to the amount of 8000 men, in the duchy of Berg, and in the town of Manheim and its environs. The fortifications of Manheim, which it was found very difficult to defend since the French made themselves masters of the fort on the left bank of the Rhine that commands the tete du pont, have been diminished. Of four battalions, of infantry and a regiment of dragoons, which the Landgrave of Hesse Cassel had in garrison at Hanau, a strong place four leagues distant from Frankfort, he has allowed only one battalion to remain, and the army of Hesse has been reinforced by the remainder.

It is also stated, with a considerable degree of confidence, that the garrison of Ehrenbreitstein has received a fresh supply of provisions from a vessel belonging to the country of Treves, which, proceeding down the Mosselle, succeeded in landing a supply at the foot of that fortress. The gallant col. Fabre, who commands there, is determined to hold out to the last extremity.

It is sincerely to be lamented that precautions and preparations only are opposed to the enemy, at a crisis when the greatest and most spirited efforts can scarcely be sufficient to check the tyrannical encroachments of the French government.

The institution of Juries in France was originally considered as a prodigious accession to the preservation of liberty and property. The modern republicans have carried the utility of the institution to a more important length than was ever thought of; for it appears that a jury was specially appointed a short time ago at Paris, for the sole purpose of nominating seven violins, with several violincellos, flutes, clarinets, French horns, and bassoons, to fill up vacancies which happened in the orchestra of the Theatre de la Republique. Juries in France may justly be complimented on their contributing so much to the national harmony.

January 25.

The Paris papers have informed us, very frequently of the extraordinary alacrity with which the French youths of the last military conscription have entered the service. The following we can pledge ourselves to be an authentic extract of a letter from a gentleman who lives not far from the bank of the Rhine received by the last mails;

"Right bank of the Rhine, Dec. 18.

"This afternoon I saw a battalion of the new conscription. One of them, the son of a goldsmith at Courtray, aged only 15 years was quartered at a saddlers. He told me, that seven weeks ago he was taken sick out of his bed and sent to the army hospital in a cart. From thence he was marched to Mentz where he again fell sick; and when again cured, marched 35 leagues in 3 days. The soles of his feet were totally raw; he had neither stockings nor shoes; and thus was obliged to traverse snow, ice and mud."

Another passage of the above letter describes the situation of the wretched peasants who are within reach of French exaction. "In this country we have been so well requisitioned, that the peasantry is literally starving for want; black bread and potatoes is their whole food; and still they are forced to yield and pay every infernal demand."

Naples and Gæta are the most important places in the kingdom of Naples. The first as the centre of the government, and of the riches and commerce of the country; the latter as the principal establishment of the Neapolitan navy; and they are unhapily exposed to the depredations of the victorious army. It is to be presumed that admiral Nelson has had the foresight to remove every thing from the port of Gæta which might increase the maritime resources of the French, and that he has destroyed what he could not bring away. It may be justly supposed that the same activity and precaution have been used with respect to Naples. But when the immense riches of that capital, and the rapid progress of the French to take possession of it, are considered, there are but too strong grounds to apprehend that they will find there ample spoils for their rapacity. The exertions of the English fleet, in taking away or destroying every article that migh be serviceable to the naval operations of the French, is the more essential, as they would materially contribute to guard Sicily from an invasion, should the enemy risk an attack upon that island, which has been preserved as an asylum for the king of Naples in his misfortunes.

January 17—20—24.

San Germano, Nov. 22.

Dear faithful, and beloved subjects—After having, for almost forty years, exerted every effort to render you happy, and to succour you in all the calamities which it has pleased God to send you, I am now about to leave my beloved country, for the sole purpose of defending our holy religion, almost overthrown to reanimate the divine worship, and to secure to you and to your children the enjoyment of the blessings which the Lord has given you. If I had been sure of attaining that object by any other sacrifice, believe me, I should not have hesitated a moment to prefer that alternative; but what hopes could be entertained of success after the many fatal examples with which you are well acquainted! I set out therefore at the head of the brave defenders of their country, full of confidence in the Lord of Hosts, who will guid our steps, and protect our operations. I go to brave all danger with the greatest cheerfulness, because I do it for my fellow citizens, for my brothers, for my children, for such I have ever considered you. Be always faithful to God and to her whom I leave in my stead to conduct the Government of these states, my dear and well beloved consort. I recommend to you then your tender mother, I recommend to you my children, who are not more mine than they are yours.—At all events remember that you are Neapolitans, that those are brave who are willing to exert their courage, and that it is better to die gloriously for God and our country than to live shamefully oppressed!—Mean while, may God bestow upon you all the blessings and happiness which is the wish of him, who is, and while he lives shall be, your most affectionate father and sovereign. Ferdinand.

The last advices from New-York came down four days later than the day appointed for the meeting of the legislature; but the President was indisposed and was unable to go in state to meet the representatives. The opening was therefore adjourned for two days.

A French Commission is employed at Rome to collect medals and antiques for the National Museum at Paris. The first package to be sent off from Rome consists of the 800 medals in the Vatican, and the celebrated Cameo of Augustus.—The second will, it is said contain the whole Museum of Portici, so famous for the curiosities from Pompeia and Herculanem which it contains and which are justly celebrated as the richest collection in the world of those monuments of antiquity.

The Court of Spain has categorically refused the demand made by the Directory for the passage of a army of 80,000 Infantry, and 6,000 Cavalry destined against Portugal. It is expected that this refusal will produce a total change of measures on the part of the Spanish Goverement.

According to private advices received by the Hamburgh Mails, it appears probable that Sweden will join Russia in the war against France; and in this case it is likely that Denmark will not remain neutral, The King of Sweden having refused to accept of Citizen La Marque as French Minister, the Execution Directory has threatened to break off all communication with the Court of Stockholm—Since then the alliance between Sweden and Russia has become more close. The King of Sweden depends on the powerful assistance of Russia to keep the States of his kingdom in awe, should they shew any signs of tumults at the approaching meeting of the Diet. It is probable that this may be the cause of the King's refusal to receive Citizen La Marque, fearing the intrigues of the French Government.

The Princess Maria Theresa Charlotte of France is to be married in the month of March next, to her cousin the Duke of Angouleme.

The ceremony is to take place at Mittau, where the most splendid preparations are now making for the occasion. The Cardinal Montmorency is to give the nuptial benediction.

NATIONAL INSTITUTE IN EGYPT.

A kind of Institute has been established, consisting of the wise men whom Buonaparte carried out with him. Along with many trifling discussions, not quite suitable to the present doubtful state of their affairs, practical questions, such as the establishment of mails; the making of gunpowder and the resources for it, &c. have engaged the attention of the Members. They have had several sittings. The first sitting of this Institution was held on the 6th of Fructidor (August 23) at seven in the morning—Monge was chosen President, Buonaparte Vice President, Fourier Secretary, and Costaz Assistant Secretary. Bunaparte proposed the following questions;

1. What are the means of œconomizing the combustibles used in the ovens of the army?
2. Can a substitute be found for hops; in the manufacture of beer in Egypt?
2. What are the best means of keeping cool and clarifying the water of the Nile?
4. Whether is it more convenient to construct wind or water mills at Cairo?
5. Does Egypt contain resources for making gunpowder?—What are these resources?
6. What is the situation of Jurisprudence, of the Judicial order, civil and criminal, and of Instructions in Egypt.—What are the improvements that may be made in these departments, and which would be agreeable to the people of the country?

Committees were appointed to examine each of these questions.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 20.

On the 17th arrived the first Tartar, or courier from Cairo, who had been dispatched from Egypt by the Kiaya of Bekir Facha, with advices of the defeat of the French. In the afternoon of the same day came in a second, and in the evening a third, in the night a fourth and fifth, and the next day a sixth and seventh. So many couriers are never remembered to have arrived at once. All these couriers were not only presented with pelices, but each received 1000 ducats.

The important dispatches they brought extend from the 15th to the 26th of Oct. They state that general Berthier, and about 49 staff officers, who met in the divan at Cairo, assembled to consider on the requisitions which were to be levied, were murdered on the firing of a pistol as a signal. The populace of Cairo immediately took up arms and massacred all the French in the capital. The number is said to have been from 11 to 1500.

General Buonaparte received the news of this disaster in the camp near Boulac, at the moment when he was making preparations to make head against three armies which were advancing against him—two to take him in flank, and one in front. The latter was commanded by the sworn enemy of the French, Murat Bey, and to prevent his junction with the other two, general Buonaparte ordered general Desaix to advance against him; but Murat Bey attacked him with superior numbers, and forced his corps, consisting of 4 or 5000 men, to retire.

The news of this victory was soon carried to the camps of Osman and Achmet, and to the city of Cairo, where all were soon under arms, and hastened to reinforce the two other armies, with whom Murat Bey soon formed a junction, and again attacked the French with a very superior force. They were defeated and Buonaparte fell in the battle. The death of this general, and the defeat of his army, drew after them the ruin of the greater part of the French garrisons in the towns of Egypt, and the city of Alexandria fell into the hands of the combined troops. A part of the transports were taken and the rest destroyed.

Another letter same date.

This day another courier arrived here from Cairo, with an account that immediately after the massacre at Cairo, Murat Bey and two other Beys attacked the French troops, posted near Cairo, and compelled them to give way to superior force.

In this bloody battle a great number of French officers of the first rank were left dead on the field, among whom was general Buonaparte himself.

Note of the Hamburgh Editor.

[As these accounts came only by private letters, and the Vienna Court Gazette of the 9th December takes no notice of them, they appear to require information.]

HAGUE, December 30.

Very sharp remonstrances are making against the last forced loan of 8 per cent. on all property, and particularly against the article which requires that the payment of this 4 per cent. shall be made in four payments. At Amsterdam, as well as at the Hague, petitions are signing expressive of these sentiments, which are to be presented on the first meeting of the representative body. The petitioners represent, that these four periods for payment are not sufficiently distant from each other.—Several Batavian officers have also remonstrated against this loan, and observe, their pay is insufficient even for their substance, and that it is impossible for them to contribute ten per cent. towards that loan.

The remonstrances of these officers have been referred to the financial committee.

NEW YORK, April 17.

We understand that the Fair American has brought 100 tons of cannon for government.

Extract of a letter from a young gentleman on board the ship Factor, of and from this port to London, dated Liverpool, 27th January.

"Honored Father,

I take this opportunity to write to you concerning my passage, as we have had a very disagreeable one: twenty-five days after we left Sandy Hook, we had the misfortune to fall in with a French privateer, called the Intrepid, a ship of 18 nine pounders and 4 brass twelves; we saw her about 10 o'clock in the morning—she came up at last with us. About half past 3, fired several shot at us—rounded too in order to give us a broadside. Fortunately she could not, it being a heavy sea; she rounded too and fired a shot at us. She hailed us, and asked our cargo; we told them; they ordered us to lower our boat, down, and bring the papers on board; our 1st mate went on board with the papers; the 1st lieutenant on board with our mate—ordered our captain on board. He told us they had the day before let two American ships pass, bound to London. Our captain went with him, and took the letter bag along; they told us we must lay too, which we did. About 12 o'clock at night, the passengers consulted with our mate, and thought it best, when the moon went down, to set sail, which we accordingly did; hove all the main deck guns overboard—blowing very hard, crouded as much sail as possible.

We lost sight of her about half past 2, and thought best to put into Liverpool, it being a contrary course and nearest port. However, we were all ready for action, but the men seeing she was of much greater force hove down their matches, and went down in the fore castle. The captain could not persuade them to fight, which we are now sure of, that if we had fired one gun, we would all have been put to death. That is all I have room for at present about her."

"N. B. Twentieth of December, we were engaged one hour and a half with a French brig privateer of 10 guns, beat her off."

Capt. M'Fall arrived here yesterday in 42 days from Spithead, informs, that on the 3d March, two ships of the line, 6 frigates, and 200 sail transports, with 15,000 troops sailed from Spithead for Portugal, to assist the Portuguese against the French.

A gentleman passenger in the Lydia informs, that it was generally believed when he sailed, that the projected Union would take place between England and Ireland.

PHILADELPHIA,

THURSDAY EVENING, APRIL 18.

Extract of a letter from Mr. MAURY, Consul of the United States at Liverpool, to the Secretary of State, dated 28th January 1799.

"The Privy Council having lately made it a condition to the admission to entry in our ships of goods not the produce of the United States, that they be in packages conformable to law, I would recommend to our citizens, that their cargoes be accordingly, especially coffee, which should be at least 112 lbs. per package.

Sailed, yesterday, on a cruise, the United States brig Norfolk, capt. Bainbridge.

We are informed, that a letter of a late date is in town, from the sailing-master of L'Insurgente, containing the important information of the White Flag having been hoisted at Guadaloupe; of Desfourneaux, the Directorial agent, having been assaffinated, and a dispatch sent to the British commander, requesting him to come and take possession of the Island. The disclosure of the design of the directory to reduce the blacks again to a state of slavery, is stated to have produced these events.

Verbal accounts by the Connecticut and Fair American, state, that Mr. Thomas Grenville, who had been out on a secret mission to Berlin, was shipwrecked and lost.

Yesterday Conrad Marks came to this city, and surrendered himself to the Deputy Marshal of the district of Pennsylvania. he offered bail for his appearance, but it was not accepted, and he was lodged in jail.—Judge Peters some time since issued a warrant for apprehending him, on a charge of treason, in pursuance of which several parties of horse had been in pursuit of him, but he contrived to elude their vigilence—and has at length thought proper to surrender himself up to justice. This man has been among the most active of the Insurgents of Buck's county, of which he was an inhabitant.

MR. DARLEY.

THOUGH the present state of the Theatre has, in a great measure deservedly, brought on itself neglect, and originated in the Public that indifference to stage representation which must, if it continues, banish the Drama from our city; yet in order to prevent a result so unpleasant to those who admire amusements of this kind, it is highly necessary that the public patronage should not be withdrawn from the deserving few.—MR. DARLEY is one of those few, and in his line excelled, perhaps, by none even in Europe. His voice, almost boundless in its extent, is fitted for all the varieties of modulation, and his skill in its management is truly fine. The Play he has selected for his benefit, (the Natural Son) is one of Cumberland's best Comedies, and the Castle of Andelusia is extremely well calculated to call forth his musical powers. The wolf-song, "flow thou regal purple stream" and "what a charming thing's a battle," would of themselves compensate the tediousness of a dull play to those who are "pleased with concord of sweet sounds," if such a compensation were necessary; which, however, is not the case, for the play is, certainly, one of the finest productions of modern time. A man possessing the endowments of Mr. Darley would be a valuable acquisition to any Theatre and we ought at least to afford him that countenance and encouragement which his talents, and exertions so eminently merit.

A detachment of Cavalry, under the command of Lieutenant Melbecke, arrived in town from Northampton, this morning, with the following prisoners, who have been safely lodged in jail.

1. Jacob Kline,	10. Fred. Hainey,
2. G. Getman,	11. John Huber,
3. A. Breish,	12. D. Kline,
4. C. Sock,	13. John Smyer,
5. V. Kuhder,	14. D. Swartz,
6. John Kline,	15. John Kyser,
7. W. Getman,	16. Peter Keifer,
8. John Getman,	17. Henry Stekler,
9. Jacob Huber,	18. A. Stalneaker,
	19. H. Shiffert.

Judge Peters, and Colonel Nichols, the Marshal, arrived with the detachment.

A London Jacobin print of February 4, asserts that the King of Prussia has declared himself Independent of the Empire.

DIED]—Yesterday, very suddenly, Mr. GEORGE M'CALL, Merchant, of this city. A numerous circle of acquaintances, to whom he was endeared by all those most estimable qualities, which form the character of the accomplished Gentleman, will long remember with unaffected sorrow, the afflicting stroke which bereaved them of so valuable a companion and friend, in the prime of life.

One Hundred Dollars Reward.

RAN away from the subscriber this day, at noon, two mulatto house Servants, viz. Ned, but commonly called Edward among his companions, well known as the subscriber's coachman and waiting man for several years in this city and in New-York—he is a tall strait made mulatto with a large bushy head of hair, about 32 years of age, has a low forehead, with small eyes, a sullen dark look and is much inclined to be abrupt and insolent, one of his legs something smaller than the other from a fracture in his youth; he generally wears a brown cloth coatee with red cuffs and cape and red edging, or fustian with red cuffs and cape; had on when he went away an old forest cloth surtout, mix'd brown and yellow, and has a box coat of light colored drab, with red and white livery lace, but as I do not know what other clothes he had on, may change his dress.

Nelly, calling herself Wife to the before named Ned, she is much above the middle stature, strait made with falling shoulders, has a remarkable ferocious countenance and is very passionate, quarrelsome, and noisy, she is rather a fair mulatto—has lost one or two of her front teeth, which she supplies with wax, and has a large scar between her shoulders occasioned by a blister; she is about forty five years of age, has a very masculine air in her walk, she carried away with her several gowns of different colored cotton; the above reward will be given for apprehending and securing them in any Jail in the United States and giving notice to the subscriber; or fifty dollars for securing either of them.——All persons are cautioned against harboring, entertaining, or concealing the above servants or either of them; and all masters of vessels and others are warned against carrying them from the United States,
